Introduction:

An online auction platform is a website or an app that allows users to buy and sell products or services through a bidding process. Online auctions are similar to traditional auctions, but they have some advantages and features that make them more convenient and accessible for both buyers and sellers. Here are some of the main aspects of online auctions:

- Bidding: Online auctions use different types of bidding mechanisms, such as ascending, descending, sealed-bid, or proxy bidding. Bidding can be done manually or automatically, depending on the user's preference and the auction rules. Bidding can also be extended or closed at any time, depending on the auction format.

- Products: Online auctions can offer a wide range of products, from new to used, from common to rare, from tangible to intangible. Users can browse and search for products by category, keyword, price, condition, location, or other criteria. Users can also view detailed information and images of the products, as well as feedback and ratings from previous buyers or sellers.

- Payments: Online auctions use various methods of payment, such as credit cards, debit cards, online wallets, bank transfers, or cash on delivery. Payments can be made directly or through a third-party service that acts as an intermediary and ensures the security and reliability of the transactions. Payments can also be subject to fees, taxes, or currency conversions, depending on the auction site and the countries involved.

- Shipping: Online auctions can facilitate the shipping of the products from the seller to the buyer, either by providing shipping options and costs, or by allowing the users to arrange their own shipping methods. Shipping can also be tracked and insured, depending on the auction site and the shipping service. Shipping can also be subject to delays, damages, or losses, depending on the shipping conditions and the delivery address.

- Feedback: Online auctions can provide feedback and ratings systems that allow users to rate and review their experiences with the products and the sellers or buyers. Feedback and ratings can help users to evaluate the quality and trustworthiness of the products and the users, as well as to resolve any disputes or issues that may arise during or after the transactions.

Online auctions are a popular and convenient way of buying and selling products or services online. They can offer users more choices, lower prices, greater efficiency, and more fun than traditional markets. However, online auctions also have some risks and challenges, such as fraud, scams, shilling, phishing, hacking, or legal issues. Therefore, users should be careful and informed when participating in online auctions, and follow the rules and guidelines of the auction sites and the laws of their countries.

Purpose:-

The main purpose of developing this project is to make people get familiar with the online auction systems and trading over the internet.

Objective:-

- To design user friendly online auction system .
- To make users participate in auctioning trusty.
- To authenticate users' account during registration.

Aim

- To provide a simple and easy way for buying and selling over the internet.

Scope

The implemented online auction system allowable for all users. The users can participate in auctioning only if they have created an account through the registration form.

Website Benefit:

Online auction platforms offer a variety of benefits to both buyers and sellers. Here are some of the benefits of online auctions:

- More buyers: Online auctions reach buyers from around the world. This provides a much larger audience willing to participate in an online auction. And those buyers are different. People who only want one item, younger buyers, stay-at-home buyers, etc., are more likely to bid online.
- Larger reach: If you're worried about your stuff being given away, online auctions provide the reach to find the right buyer for each and every item.
- Convenience: Buyers can bid when and where they want and bid on multiple auctions in the same day.
- Exposure: Buyers can search and find items of interest because every item is cataloged.
- Longer bidding window: Online bidding can stay open for as long as you want. Longer bidding means more chances for bidders to find what they want and engage. And, this allows for buyers to do their homework and make informed decisions, which they love to do.
- No moving: Items are pictured, sold and picked up from the same location. That's more money in your pocket that you would have spent on moving costs.
- Provide more details: You, the seller, can review online item descriptions to ensure accuracy.
- More throughput: You are in control. You decide how many items to close in any amount of time. You can close 10 items in a minute or two1.

- Less onsite activity: Your stuff will still be picked up, just not all at once.

Pickup by appointment is a beautiful thing.

Login page:

A login page is a web page that allows users to access a restricted area of an online auction platform by entering their username and password. Some words that are related to login page in online auction platform are:

- Authentication: The process of verifying the identity of a user who tries to log in to an online auction platform.
- Bidder: A user who participates in an online auction by placing bids on various items.
- Seller: A user who offers items for sale on an online auction platform.
- Auction: A process of selling items by inviting bids from multiple bidders and awarding the item to the highest bidder.
- Bid: An offer of a price for an item in an online auction.
- Catalogue: A list of items that are available for bidding on an online auction platform.
- Corrigendum: A notice of correction or modification of the terms and conditions of an online auction.
- Result: The outcome of an online auction, indicating the winning bidder and the final price of the item.

Technologies used :

HTML (Hyper Text Markup Language) :

HTML, or Hyper Text Markup Language, is the essential framework for constructing web pages. Using a system of tags and elements, HTML structures content on the internet, defining everything from text and images to interactive forms and embedded media. It acts as a blueprint, organizing and presenting information for browsers to interpret and display. With its simple syntax and versatile nature, HTML empowers developers to create a wide array of websites, from basic layouts to intricate, multimedia-rich pages. It provides the structural foundation, linking different elements together through hyperlinks and enabling seamless navigation across the vast web landscape. HTML's universal adoption and adaptability make it the cornerstone of web development, facilitating the creation of user-friendly and engaging online experiences across various devices and platforms.

Hear are some html tags and their uses:

1. <html> Denotes the beginning and end of an HTML document. All other elements are nested within this tag.

2. <head> Contains meta-information about the document, including title, metadata, scripts, and styles.

3. <body> Encloses the main content of the web page, including text, images, links, and other elements visible to users.

4. <h1> - <h6> Headings ranging from the most important `<h1>` to the least important `<h6>`. Used to structure content hierarchically.

5.  Defines a paragraph, grouping text or other inline elements.

6.  Creates hyperlinks, linking to other web pages or resources. It's used with the “ href “ attribute to specify the destination.

7. < img> Inserts images into the webpage. Requires the “src” attribute to specify the image source.

8. and , defines a division or section in a document, often used for layout, while `` is an inline container used for styling or targeting specific text.

CSS (Cascading Style Sheets):

CSS stands for Cascading Style Sheets. It is a language that is used to style and format the appearance of web pages. CSS can control the layout, colors, fonts, backgrounds, borders, margins, padding, and other visual aspects of web elements. CSS can also create animations, transitions, and effects for web pages. CSS works together with HTML, which defines the structure and content of web pages, and JavaScript, which adds interactivity and functionality to web pages. CSS can be written in separate files with the .css extension, or embedded in HTML files using the <style> tag. CSS rules consist of selectors, which specify the elements to be styled, and declarations, which define the properties and values to be applied.

- Properties are tags that define the style of an element, such as color, font, margin.

  etc. For example, background-color: yellow; sets the background color of an element to yellow.

- Selectors are tags that specify which elements to apply the style to, such as class, id, attribute, etc.

  For example, .container {width: 80%;} applies the style to all elements with the class name “container”.
